NCWIT Aspirations in Computing (AiC) Community

MSU's membership in the NCWIT Academic Alliance, qualifies MSU students who are studying CS at any level and who identify as women, gender-queer, or bisexual to join the NCWIT Aspirations in Computing (AiC) Community. NCWIT AiC is a national network of peers, supported by professionals and volunteers, who want to see YOU succeed in technology. Members exchange ideas and advice; gain exclusive access to computing hackathons, internships, scholarships, jobs, awards, and more; and lead computing experiences that inspire the next generation, and informally mentor others. Find more information and apply to join at <https://www.aspirations.org/AiCCommunity>.

Sage Corps

The Sage Corps are recruiting for this Summer.

The program includes the following:

- Access to Udemy to complete a Learning Path of 40-50 hours of professional development modules (hard skills in Marketing, Business Development, Data, Software, Graphic Design, or UI/UX)

- 12-week internship with a global startup either remotely or tentatively in-person (potential in-person locations are in Chicago, Europe, and/or Australia depending on CDC regulations and travel restrictions. Final decision will be communicated in early April.)
- Customized resume edits with our staff
- A full schedule of professional events including Alumni Panels focused on a specific industry or topic
- An orientation with the other students and weekly monitoring
- Access to their alumni community

Re:Think Magazine

Introducing re:think, a thought-leadership magazine from NCWIT that advocates for a more diverse, equal, and inclusive technology industry. Gain insights on inclusion from experts who guide our shifting culture, from technologists whose innovations undoubtedly impact our daily lives, and from change leaders who use their positions of influence to reveal the potential in everyone. It's time to re:imagine the parts each of us play in creating a better future.
